NOTES

The Codicil overleaf, if completed and executed correctly, can be passed to your Solicitor to be retained with your existing Will. It has been prepared so that it will be given effect by your executors without impacting in any way on the terms of your existing Will, other than requiring the executors to pay the specified legacy to The Glasgow Academicals' War Memorial Trust free of Inheritance Tax or any other taxes or duties for which your estate may be liable.

Please note that the Codicil Form overleaf is for use only in cases where your legal domicile is Scottish. Generally speaking if your existing Will was prepared and is retained in Scotland the enclosed form will suffice as a valid Codicil to your existing Will.

If on the other hand your legal domicile is outside Scotland (please note that a person's legal domicile may still be Scottish even although he or she currently resides elsewhere in the United Kingdom or abroad) or there is any doubt about domicile it will be necessary to check with a local Solicitor or other legal advisor in order to be satisfied that a Codicil in the style suggested is sufficient.

The Trustees of The Glasgow Academicals' War Memorial Trust are satisfied that the correct completion and execution of the enclosed form is sufficient to constitute a valid Codicil to your Will in Scotland and we hope that you will find it convenient to use this form and pass it to your Solicitor to retain with your existing Will.

However, anyone wishing to take separate legal or other advice prior to signing must feel free to do so.
